Catch Up Premium Plan for the Academic Year 2020-2021

What is catch-up funding?

- Children and young people across the country have experienced unprecedented disruption to their education as a result of coronavirus (COVID-19).
- The Government has provided a one-off universal catch up premium for the 2020 to 2021 academic year to ensure that schools have the support they need to help all pupils make up for lost teaching time after school closure. The Catch-up Premium has been designed to mitigate the effects of the unique disruption caused by coronavirus (COVID-19).
- Schools' allocations are calculated on a per pupil basis, providing each mainstream school with a total of £80 for each pupil in years Reception through to 11. Similar to the Pupil Premium, schools are advised to use the sum available to them as a single total even though funding is calculated on a per pupil basis. The grant will only be available for the 2020-21 academic year.

| Catch Up Premium Funding Allocation 2020/2021        |                |
|------------------------------------------------------|----------------|
| Total per child from Reception to Year 2             | £80            |
| Total number of pupils on roll – October Census 2020 | 165            |
| Total amount                                  | £13,200 |

Using catch-up funding

- Schools are expected to use this funding for specific activities which will help pupils catch up on missed education; to support their pupils to catch up for lost teaching over the previous months, in line with the guidance on curriculum expectations for the next academic year.
- Schools have the flexibility to use their funding in a way that suits their cohort and circumstances.
- To support schools to make the best use of this funding, the Education Endowment Foundation (EEF) has published a coronavirus \(COVID-19\) support guide for schools with evidence-based approaches to catch up for all students. Schools should use this document to help them direct their additional funding in the most effective way. The EEF advises the following:
  - Teaching and whole school strategies (Supporting great teaching; Pupil assessment and feedback; Transition support)
  - Targeted approaches (One to one and small group tuition; Intervention programmes; Extended school time)
  - Wider strategies (Supporting parent and carers; Access to technology; Summer support)
- Schools may also access the National Tutoring Programme to provide additional, targeted support for those children and young people who need the most help. This programme includes an oral language intervention programme for reception-aged children (the Nuffield Early Language Intervention, NELI). The NELI programme is a high quality, evidence based, 20 week intervention designed to improve the language skills of Reception aged pupils. EEF trials have found that NELI improves both children's oral language skills and early literacy skills; on average, +3 months additional progress. Schools will be able to access on-line training and resources.

| During Term 1 we have taken time to understand the impact of the extended school closure period on our children in order to establish where gaps in knowledge have developed or where additional practice is required, and identify their next steps. Our assessments will inform our teaching and intervention this year, ensuring that support is well targeted, intervention is effective and pupil progress accelerated. Cohort data and observations identify the following:                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |  |

| A significant percentage of children in Reception are presenting with listening &amp; attention, understanding and expressive language skills in the 'well below' and 'below' range, as identified by teacher assessments for Communication, Language &amp; Literacy. On entry to school, only 28% of children are in the age appropriate range for Listening &amp; attention, 38% in Speaking and 42% in Understanding language. Personal, social and emotional development has been significantly affected (see 'all cohort' paragraph below), which is demonstrated in poorer learning behaviours, social skills and relationships on entry to school. 32% are scoring within age appropriate levels for managing feelings &amp; behaviour and 36% in making relationships. The above are likely to be due to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- the closure of early years' settings due to COVID-19 in March 2020 and children consequently missing +5 months pre-school experiences;</li> <li>- lack of opportunities to develop skills and vocabulary through pre-school experience/experiences outside of the family home/visiting new places/seeing other family members;</li> <li>- lack of opportunities for children to engage in play situations with same-age peers;</li> <li>- parents having to work from home, therefore unable to dedicate time to read and play with children;</li> <li>- increase in screen time and decrease in language-rich play opportunities.</li> </ul> Reading and writing readiness has been affected significantly by the above. Essential pre-reading and writing activities that would normally take place at pre-school age have been missed, including a lack of opportunity to take part in Phase 1 activities. Only 30% of pupils are working in the age appropriate range. In physical development, children's fine motor skills have been affected by lack of practice and experience, with many pupils displaying poor fine motor control on entry to school. |  |
| Year 1 & Year 2                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |  |
| Reading: In both year groups, reading fluency has been identified as an area of concern. Children have lost their reading stamina from not reading at all or reading a lot less than usual during lockdown and over the summer holidays. The majority of children are Reading at levels below where they should be - three quarters of Year 1 and 82% of Year 2. Across the Key Stage, phonic assessments have shown that our children have largely retained their phonic knowledge taught prior to lockdown but due to not making progress during lockdown we have a considerable proportion working below expectations in phonics in September; 72% in Y1 and 36% in Y2. For some children, segmenting and blending skills have regressed. Children's comprehension skills have also regressed; Reading that was completed with parents during lockdown appears to have focussed on de-coding rather than comprehension skills. The gap between those children that read widely and those children who don't is now increasingly wide. Evidence gathered also shows that the standard of reading of our disadvantaged children is below that of their non-disadvantaged peers and should therefore continue to be an area of continuous focus in our strategy. All Pupil Premium children in Y1 and Y2 are reading below expected levels (with 40-50% just below). Writing: In Year 1 and 2, children have forgotten how to form letters correctly, with poor fine motor skills more evident in pencil control/grip and cutting skills. Children have missed 'units' of learning and have lost essential practising of writing skills. Spelling, punctuation and grammar (SPAG) specific knowledge has suffered; children are having difficulties constructing sentences, lack awareness of punctuation and spacing and general fluency in writing. Those who have maintained writing throughout                                                                                                                                |  | lockdown are less affected, however, those who evidently didn't write much have had to work additionally hard on writing stamina and improving their motivation due to the lack of fluency in their ability to write. Assessments show again that three quarters of Y1 and 82% of Y2 are below age related expectations.

Maths: Specific content has been missed, leading to gaps in learning and stalled progress. Children still have an enthusiasm for maths and lockdown has not affected their attitudes however, they are quite simply, 'behind'. Recall of basic skills has suffered – children are not able to recall addition facts or add/subtract with fluency, arithmetic skills are poorer, understanding of place value has been affected and children have forgotten once taught calculation strategies. This is reflected in maths assessments and observations of learning during the first term back in school.

As in Literacy, children's recording skills have been significantly affected by lockdown – children have forgotten how to form numbers correctly and demonstrate less independence in approach when recording.

Levels of working are better than in Literacy but still a concern: teacher assessments show 50% of Y1 and 63% of Y2 working below expected levels on return to school.

Foundation subjects: There are now significant gaps in knowledge – whole schemes for learning have not been taught, meaning that children are less able to access pre-requisite knowledge when learning something new and they are less likely to make connections between concepts and themes throughout the curriculum. Children have also missed out on curriculum experiences e.g. trips, visitors and powerful curriculum moments. Curriculum plans have been re-written to take into account what has been missed and will be taught during the next few years. Topics have been adapted to ensure teachers teach the most important aspects of each subject and allow children to cover content missed in the summer term and revisit past learning. Gaps in knowledge will also be addressed as they appear.

All Cohorts

Personal, Social & Emotional Development:

-The children spent months without interaction opportunities beyond their own household/immediate family network. An extended period of time was spent without (or with limited) interaction with their peers. A priority for all children is therefore re-establishing key relationships and friendships, social interaction and opportunities to explore feelings and emotions. We have quickly re-established our PSHE curriculum and wellbeing work, and will continue to do so, prioritising a significant amount of pastoral support to support the children in their recovery from the impact of lost education. Support and time needs to be provided to discuss experiences of the school closure period as well as the provision of additional support for specific issues as things arise.

-Under-developed learning behaviours were noticeable in some cohorts upon return to school, most noticeably within our Reception cohort, a further impact of missed pre-school education for the majority of this cohort. A significant number display well below age appropriate attention, listening and concentration skills. PSHE curriculum work needs to be a priority with our Reception classes as many pupils entered school with immature emotional and behavioural understanding, underdeveloped social interaction skills and poor ability to follow instructions/respond to adults appropriately.

Our Year 1 children, having missed a significant proportion of their Reception year, also demonstrate similar difficulties. Speaking and listening skills have regressed for many, needing constant consolidation, reinforcement, re-teaching and positive modelling. Many children need reinforcement to listen fully and follow instructions appropriately, as well as lots of opportunities to turn take with their peers, speak in an appropriate volume and to mix and interact socially.

A lack of self-help skills and independence are also evident within both year groups, e.g. in eating habits at lunchtime, independence within tasks/dressing, ability to 'have a go' without asking for adult support.

Time will be spent reinforcing and re-establishing independence and positive learning behaviours and routines in all year groups, using rewards and positive reinforcement methods. Support will be provided to transition back to school, to ensure the children start the term 'ready to learn'. During Term 1 we will help the children to re-discover how they learn and remind them of our school values.

How we will spend our catch-up funding: Our approach

- At Coalway we will use our own and others' recommendations to allocate funding to initiatives that are most likely to have an impact on improving our children's achievement and well-being in the key areas identified above.
- Our decisions are informed by our professional judgement, having completed an evaluation of our children's greatest areas of need (our 'catch-up' priorities) on their return to school following the lockdown period. Our catch-up priorities this year are within the curriculum areas of Reading & Phonics, Writing, Maths, PSHE in Key Stage 1 (Years 1 and 2) and in Communication, Language and Literacy, Personal, Social and Emotional Development, Reading, Writing, Mathematics and Physical Development in the Early Years (Reception), i.e. all EYFS Prime areas of learning.
- We have looked at strategies tried in other schools, those identified by the Education Endowment Fund as being successful and others developed ourselves to meet the needs of our children and proven to be successful in the past.
- Those children from the most vulnerable and disadvantaged backgrounds are among those most severely affected. Our chosen approaches align closely with our Pupil Premium spending priorities and school improvement priorities, i.e. phonics and recovery curriculum priorities.
- We have established a strong link between SEND and disadvantage, which clarifies our belief that money spent on focused learning support and intervention, both in small groups and in class, is well targeted.
- Improving the outcomes of disadvantaged and SEND children in school are consistently areas of school priority, this year even more so.
- Our curriculum has been revised in the light of the school closure period and prioritises gaps in pupils' knowledge and re-establishing good progress in the essentials (phonics and reading, writing and maths). We will also continue to regularly monitor the mental health of our pupils, with staff completing daily check-in's, PSHE and wellbeing lessons.
- We will use a range of approaches to enable our children to catch-up. However, we have decided to select a small number of priorities to give these the best chance of success rather than create a long list of strategies which will be hard to manage.
- Teaching will use quality first teaching approaches to deliver the curriculum. We will continue to promote the best possible teaching because this is the most important aspect of improving outcomes for our children.
- Opportunities will be provided for professional development to enhance and support teachers in achieving the best possible outcomes in school priority areas (including phonics, wellbeing, support with curriculum and remote learning planning).
- High quality 1:1 and small group interventions will be used to support the pupils who have fallen furthest behind.
- As suggested by the EEF, we will use some Whole school teaching strategies;
some Targeted approaches;
and some Wider strategies. Our approaches are organised as such in the tables below.

| To ensure all pupils receive high quality teaching (the provision of great teaching being the most important factor in improving attainment). | Teachers are supported and prepared for the new school year (EEF 1a): In-Service days &amp; staff meeting time to be taken to review, rewrite and adapt curriculum plans. In-Service days allocated at the start of Terms 1, 2 &amp; 3. Subject leads and teachers to review curriculum plans and update to ensure key learning that has been missed is incorporated, that the most important aspects of each subject are taught and that gaps in knowledge and skills are addressed/reduced. Opportunities are provided for professional development, to support curriculum planning/remote learning planning as well as focused CPD in priority catch-up areas such as phonics/Reading (Letters &amp; Sounds, DfE Hub), EYFS Language development (NELI programme) and PSHE. Staff to receive training to help plan for coverage missed from 2019-20 (main focus on English and Maths), supporting a “recovery” curriculum. These subjects will be planned with increasing consideration for how pre-requisite knowledge will be taught alongside new learning so that knowledge gaps can be reduced. Teachers and TAs to attend professional development to include emotional well-being aspects of the recovery curriculum. More time to be allocated to emotional well-being and PSHE work. Quality first teaching approaches to be used so that pupils make faster progress in English and Maths, closing the gaps created by lockdown. Pupils to have significantly more time being taught by a teacher as opposed to working with a TA or independently. Teaching to be focused on areas pupils would most benefit from additional practice/feedback and linked to curriculum/individual priorities. Additional teachers to be employed for half to 1 day per week per class to provide focused additional teaching of Reading to children identified as having fallen furthest behind. High quality assessment and feedback (EEF 1b) will continue to be a focus: Teachers to set aside regular time to assess pupils’ wellbeing, attainment and progress. Staff to complete subject specific assessments in literacy and numeracy to identify catch up support required and monitor progress during the year. Staff to ensure that pupils are provided with constant high quality feedback. | SLT Lead&amp; Responsibility of all staff Monitoring of curriculum plans, book looks, observations. Discussions with children about their learning. CPD log. Assessment outcomes; progress reviews. Feedback from staff. Feedback from Subject leads; English, PSHE, Maths in particular. Cost of employing additional Reading teachers: £13,000 – costed in Targeted Support Section below |
